City dumpsites in San Pedro Sula & Tegucigalpa

- Honduras remains one of the poorest countries in the Western Hemisphere.
- We work in the cities of San Pedro Sula and Tegucigalpa, in communities next to the city garbage dump. The adults (and many children) in these communities earn their livelihood by picking through trash for items to sell and use.
- Through a donor-sponsored holistic scholarship program, we're empowering children to change their futures.

Instead of picking through trash, our Samaritan Scholars are in school, picking future careers.

At age 16, Anthony had already worked in the dumpsite for years before our team found him and gave him a scholarship. Watch his story:
